FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Tjeerd Doosje Proudly Walks Away Victorious in the 2022 MUSE Photography Awards

(New York, New York, March 15, 2022) – The 2022 MUSE Photography Awards draws to a close and announces the list of official winners to the public. The award program honors, recognizes, and promotes outstanding photographers worldwide who continue to push the boundaries of the ever-thriving visual medium through the lens of their cameras and telling stories that will live on for decades to come.

This year, Studio Tjeerd decidedly takes the MUSE Gold Award twice and the MUSE Silver Award twice within the awards.

The winning image was taken by Tjeerd Doosje for Merlin Sen.

“It’s such a honor being selected for both the MUSE Gold Award and the MUSE Silver Award and especially that my muse Merlin is depicted in this photo.

I do hope that this award will be a key- and steppingstone for her as a model and for me as a photographer.

Thank you IAA for giving us the opportunity to show our photo to the world and reward us with this prestigious award and statuette.”

The MUSE Photography Awards program caters to photographers from all walks of life, regardless if they are professionals, agencies, amateurs, or students. With that, the International Awards Associate (IAA) hopes to honor and celebrate inspiring photographs which transcend the barriers of language; from architecture to black and white, commercial, editorial, event, fine art, nature, people, and so on. “The MUSE Photography Awards encourages international participants to compete at a global level and tell their side of their story,” said Thomas Brandt, spokesperson of IAA. “We honor the individuals from around the world to push themselves to the limit and discover once-in-a-lifetime moments, archiving it for all to see while sharing their photographic works with every one that otherwise cannot be seen through our naked eyes.”

In 2022, we saw participation from more than 50 countries worldwide, including: United States, Germany, Italy, United Kingdom, France, Netherlands, Australia, Norway, Belgium, Switzerland, Spain, Japan, Romania, to name a few, and over 3,500 entries were submitted, but only few emerged victorious. With multitudinous entries, the MUSE Photography Awards has ranked them, via blind judging, in accordance to the industry’s best standards, based on the creative messages and nuances behind each photograph. Winners were then selected based on their ability to meet the competition’s criteria.

Grand Jury Panel

Impartiality and strict assessment criteria are imposed by IAA by setting up a jury comprised of industry-leading professionals and veterans who have proven to exhibit the highest standards of excellence in photography. The jury selects exceptional participants and their photographs who have exceeded their expectations and set industry benchmarks. These esteemed judges include industry-leading titans in the photography world such as José Martinez Silva (Portugal), Jarvis Grant (United States), Patrizia Burra (Italy), Remi Masson (France), and many more.

“Our esteemed group of judges are always eager to be impressed once again to see the bar of creative narrative to be raised even higher than before,” Thomas Brandt remarked. “Here at MUSE, we want to share with the world that there is more to it in a still image that they cannot learn from any other source of information, and we want to keep pushing the narrative potential and possibility of telling their story in the most effective way possible.”
